A celebration of influence

TIME hosted a gala in Los Angeles on Oct. 24 to mark the publication of its second annual Latino Leaders list, presented by Nissan. Above, María Zardoya, lead singer of the Marias, and Josh Conway perform at the venue, Casita Hollywood; below, actors George Lopez and Camila Mendes speak about the importance of representation in Hollywood. See the full list at time.com/latino-leaders-2024

Indigenous films to stream now

Film history is rife with harmful stereotypes of Native peoples. To mark November as Native American Heritage Month in the U.S., TIME spoke to Indigenous scholars and filmmakers about the movies that actually get the Indigenous experience right, like Fancy Dance (pictured). time.com/native-films

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

In "Fortress Democracy" (Nov. 11), we misidentified the organization for which David Becker is executive director; it is the Center for Election Innovation and Research. In the same issue, in "Mel Robbins Will Make You Do It," we misstated when Robbins' mother left college; it was her sophomore year.

In addition, the Best Inventions list contained several errors: Bitkey is made from Corian; ALZPath licensed its Alzheimer's antibody to Roche, and it received Breakthrough Device status in April; the Roche HPV self-collection solution is administered in a health care setting; BeeHero sensors are placed in fields; Dsm-Firmenich is a Swiss-Dutch company, and the FDA determined Bovaer meets safety and efficacy requirements for use; and Agility calculated the return on investment for the Digit robot based on a human working for $30 an hour.
